What is EE JYA NAI KA ??

"Ee jya nai ka" was a protest that first happened at Muro Village in Atsumi County, Mikawa Province, Japan in July 1867, at the end of the Edo period.

"The sacred amulets from heaven have fallen. This is an auspicious sign!" As the saying spread, people would dress up and shout out the refrain, "Ee jya nai ka (Who cares?)" while visiting towns in groups and dancing frantically.
